CONTENTS

June edition of One Island magazine

Welcome to the June issue of One Island magazine. In this edition we focus on a series of major council projects which are helping to energise the Island's economy:

- The 846-home Pan Meadows housing project.

- The £260 million highway's private finance initiative.
- The extensive scheme of new buildings, extensions and improvements at Island school sites.

We also take a look at other significant projects – particularly in the renewable energy sector – where the council is working to promote Island investment and jobs. And over the next week, thousands of visitors linked to the NatWest Island Games 2011 will bring an exciting range of sporting action to the Island's shores – as well as, of course, a welcome boost to the local economy.

One Island is a community magazine produced by the Isle of Wight Council with its key public sector partners – NHS Isle of Wight, Isle of Wight Police (Hampshire Constabulary) and the Isle of Wight Rural Community Council. Working together, we are striving to create an Island that is safe and well kept; healthy and supportive; inspiring; and thriving.

Festival goes from strength to strength

Thousands of people took to the Island's footpaths and byways last month, once again ensuring the 16-day Isle of Wight Walking Festival was a big success.

This year saw the 13th staging of the award-winning annual festival, the biggest event of its kind in the UK.

The festival featured more than 300 walks across a whole range of themes, from the epic 72-mile coastal path walk to the popular speed-dating walk.

One walker from Canterbury, who emailed the council to thank it for organising the festival, said she and her husband walked for 14 of the 16 days, clocking up 150 miles.

"All the leaders of the walks were informative and experienced. The walks took us through lovely countryside with wide views of the mainland, the Solent and the ocean. The weather was fantastic. We will be back next year!"

Don't miss autumn walking weekend

For all keen walkers there is more to come – as this October will see the fourth annual autumn walking weekend on the Island.

The walking weekend takes place from 21 to 24 October, with the full programme of walks available from August.

You can view the walks online at www.isleofwightwalkingfestival.co.uk

New council chairman

Councillor David Williams has been elected as the council's new chairman for 2011/2012.

Councillor Williams, member for Shanklin Central, replaces Councillor Ian Stephens, who has completed his term of office.

The council chairman is its civic head and chairs meetings of the full council. The position is non-political, and as well as being responsible for the council's civic affairs, the role includes promoting public involvement in the council's activities.

Decision day for waste and recycling collection changes

More than 800 responses were received to the recent public consultation on changing the Island's waste collection service to boost recycling.

The responses were collated for presentation to a meeting of the council's cabinet to consider the options for changes to the service.

Details of the cabinet's decision and the plan for implementation of any changes will be available on the iwight.com website.

Prosecution message for harbour divers

A strong message has gone out to anyone who dives into or swims in Ryde Harbour – you will risk prosecution and a fine of up to £1,000.

The message is intended to protect people from the dangers, including serious injury from jumping or diving ('tombstoning') into the harbour.

CCTV cameras will spot anyone who defies a bylaw which has banned swimming and linked activities in the harbour since 2000.

There are clear warning signs around the harbour and the council has the power to prosecute those who defy the bylaw. A PA system at the harbour is also used to provide warnings.

The council will work with the police to identify any offenders.

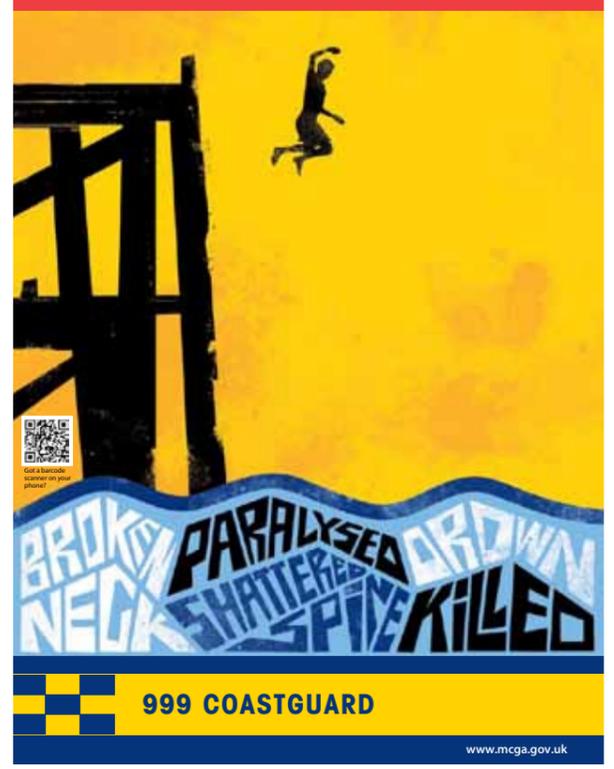

"Clearly the intention of this bylaw and strict action is to protect people from injury. Jumping from a height of up to four metres off the harbour wall into shallow water can have serious consequences," said the council's environment director, Stuart Love.

There is only two metres of water in the harbour at high tide and at other times under a metre of seawater or less. There is chalk and rock in some places beneath the water.

The height of summer is the worst time for 'tombstoning', often when teenage schoolchildren are on their summer holidays.

Parents are being reminded of the dangers to their children, and the warning message is also being sent out to schools.

Don't jump into the unknown.

Young Islanders celebrate medal success

Sixteen young athletes from the Isle of Wight returned with four medals from a successful trip to the annual World Island Youth Games in Sicily.

All four medals came from the athletics team, although several personal bests were also set by members of the swimming team.

- The medal winners were:
- Carla Roberts (bronze) in the girls' 1500 metres;
 - Annabelle Marsh, Polly Hopper, Holly Newton and

- Taylor Canning (silver) in the girls' 4 x 100 metres relay;
- Tom Newnham (silver) in the 3000 metres;
 - Polly Hopper (bronze) in the girls' 200 metres.

Picture: Carla Roberts proudly wears the bronze medal she won in the girls' 1500 metres

Team manager, Lee Matthews, said: "This year's field was very tough, especially as our team were missing several older athletes due to clashes with exams. This means that winning four medals is even more impressive and puts the team in good stead for future years."

Island Insulation Scheme

The Island Insulation Scheme is a home insulation scheme offering loft and cavity wall insulation to local residents who own their own home or rent from a private landlord. It is supported by the Isle of Wight Council.

¹The £340 saving over a one year period is made up from increasing your loft insulation from 50mm (about 2 inches) to between 250mm and 270mm (about 10 to 11 inches) and installing cavity wall insulation. The cost saving is approximate, is provided for illustrative purposes only and is based on a 1940s gas heated semi-detached house with three bedrooms. Savings assume a gas price of 3.158p/kWh using a 10 year old gas boiler. Your individual saving will vary according to the type and age of your house, the type and age of your boiler, the fuels you use in your home and whether or not you choose to take increased warmth following the installation of the insulation measures.

Community news from around the Island

Knowing who to turn to

Island teenagers and their parents are being reminded of the special advice and help available for youngsters who may be experiencing an abusive teenage relationship.

Data from the British Crime Survey has shown that girls aged 16 to 19 are now the group most at risk of domestic abuse.

Abuse in teenage relationships is not always about physical violence – it can include threats, emotional abuse, isolation from friends and family, and controlling behaviour.

Advice on the signs that something may be wrong, how parents can help, and how to get support, are available from a range of organisations and websites.

These include:

- thisisabuse.direct.gov.uk;
- www.thehideout.org.uk;
- and a national charity that works with and for parents, www.parentlineplus.org.uk

Extra controls help protect conservation areas

The extension of conservation areas for Ryde, Ryde St John's, Shanklin, Sandown and Bembridge has been approved by the council.

The adoption of the amended areas follows a public consultation exercise in January.

Conservation areas have enhanced planning controls to help sustain the distinctive character of an area.

As part of the amended arrangements, the council has agreed to the removal of some permitted development rights for various properties – which means changes such as removing chimneys, changing windows or the erection of a porch, for example, will require planning permission.

This will help the council to guide changes in these sensitive cases.

The newly adopted

documents can be viewed online at www.iwight.com/conservation

Key sites added to Local List

A number of key sites have been added to the Island's Local List – which seeks to protect local distinctiveness in the historic and built environment.

Additions were approved in May, and among them were properties on the former Royal Estate at Osborne.

These included: Six Cottages, Alverstone Road, Whippingham (pictured above) – built in 1859 following the construction of a new road across the estate; and Mount Cottages, built in 1904 in the Barton Estate style, possibly to an earlier design by Prince Albert.

The review panel also approved Woody Bay coastguard cottages and the old cottages in Coastguard Lane, Freshwater.

The next review panel meeting will be held in August – with nominations for further historic structures, parks, gardens and buildings for the list, to be received by 1 August.

For more information and to download a nomination form, please visit www.iwight.com/localist

Worried about a child?

Most children enjoy happy childhood experiences within their own family, but unfortunately for some this is not always the case.

If you are concerned about a child or young person it's sometimes difficult to know what to do for the best or where to go for help. Rather than do nothing, it is important people report their genuine concerns.

If you are worried a child is being harmed or is at risk, please contact children's social care on 525790 (working hours) or 821105 (outside working hours). If you think a child is in immediate danger you can also contact the police using 999.

Campaign to improve early detection

NHS
Isle of Wight

A new campaign is taking place on the Island to improve the early awareness and diagnosis of bowel cancer.

The campaign is part of a combined project involving the Southampton, Hampshire, Isle of Wight and Portsmouth primary care trusts.

The research project involves investigating the occurrence of bowel cancer among the over 50s and the barriers to detecting the early stages of the illness. It will help develop effective interventions in areas with the highest levels of bowel cancer.

Early diagnosis can reduce the impact of bowel cancer and help effective treatment.

For more information about the project, which continues into July, you can visit: www.cscn.nhs.uk/bowelcanceraware.html

Symptoms

The symptoms of bowel (colorectal) cancer can be:

- a change in your normal bowel habit, lasting four weeks or more;
- bleeding from your rear or blood in your stools;
- unexplained extreme tiredness/weight loss;
- a pain or lump in your abdomen.

You may experience all, some or none of these symptoms. Remember most symptoms will not be bowel cancer. If you are worried, make an appointment with your GP.

NatWest Island Games XN

FEATURE

All set for NatWest Island Games 2011

The time has arrived! More than 3,000 athletes and officials from 25 islands are on the Isle of Wight for the NatWest Island Games 2011. Here we look at the key events and highlights for the week ahead

It is one of the biggest sporting weeks the Isle of Wight has ever experienced. From Saturday 25 June to Friday 1 July venues across the Island will be playing host to competitors and supporters for one of the largest multi-sport events outside the Olympics and Commonwealth Games.

The International Island Games were established in the Isle of Man in 1985 and today include 25 member islands in, or associated with, the nine sovereign nations of Canada, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, Greece, Norway, Spain, Sweden, UK plus the Caribbean.

The list of sports taking place during the games will be: archery, athletics, badminton, basketball, cycling, football, golf, sailing (including windsurfing), shooting, squash, swimming, table tennis, tennis and volleyball.

The games are being run by the Island Games Association (Isle of Wight), supported by the council, which is also a sponsor. Other supporters include: Wightlink, NHS Isle of Wight, Southern Vectis, Red Funnel, Hovertravel, Tourism South East, the Isle of Wight County Press and Isle of Wight Radio.

The action-packed week will culminate with a celebratory closing ceremony at Cowes on Friday (1 July).

Games' highlights

25 June – Opening ceremony, starting at Ryde (5pm).

26 June – Cycling Criterion in Ventnor town centre (1pm).

27 to 30 June – Athletics finals at Fairway, Sandown, and swimming finals at Medina Leisure Centre, Newport (evenings).

1 July – Football finals at Newport FC (men) and Cowes FC (women).

1 July – Closing ceremony parade, Cowes (7pm).

Don't miss the opening ceremony

The spectacular opening ceremony parade will wind its way through the streets of Ryde from 5pm on Saturday 25 June.

The choreographed procession will feature 1,500 young people performing historic and folkloric episodes from the history of the Isle of Wight, accompanied by the games' athletes.

- Residents of Ryde are advised to walk to the parade as car parking is limited. If you live outside Ryde, public transport is advised, and arrival before road closures from 4pm. Islandline will be running additional trains.
- A park and ride service will operate from Smallbrook Stadium to Ryde Esplanade, starting at 2pm, last departure at 4.45pm. Park and ride buses return to Smallbrook from Ryde bus station from 6.45pm to 10pm.
- The parade begins at Simeon Street at 5pm and will join the athletes at Dover Street at 5.25pm,

Memorable medals

reaching the Esplanade at 7pm.

- The formal opening of the games will start at 7.30pm (athletes only – no public due to space restrictions).
- Parade participants and the general public will have a chance to watch the formal opening on two large screens located at Simeon Street recreation ground where carnival entertainment and refreshments will be available. The Eastern Gardens on the Esplanade will also have a large screen.

For a parade route map and more information please visit: www.natwestislandgames2011.co.uk or www.thecarnivallearningcentre.org

Creating a vibrant community

The first 12 homes on the major Pan Meadows housing project at Newport are set to be occupied by the end of this month. Here we take a look at progress with one of the biggest housing developments the Island has ever seen

On the outskirts of Newport the pioneering Pan Meadows housing project has been visibly rising from the ground.

The aim of the council and its partners, Spectrum Housing Group and Barratt David Wilson (Southampton), is to create a vibrant residential community while generating social, environmental and economic benefits.

At the heart of the development is a sense of community partnership working – one of the underlying principles of the Pan Neighbourhood Partnership. The partnership, through its various projects has been energising the existing Pan community in readiness for the many new residents.

The Pan Meadows development will see the creation of 846 new homes, and the project brief for homebuilder Barratt Homes is about integrating the homes – each to a high design standard and environment-friendly specification – in an innovative way into the existing Pan community.

More than 250 of the homes will be affordable, and all will be let using a local lettings plan giving priority to Island residents.

The units in the project will vary in size from a 130-square metre four-bedroom, double balconied detached family home to a 50-square metre apartment. Thirty per cent of the units will be affordable housing.

All the new homes will receive their heat and hot water from a central biomass plant – a striking building, part of which will be underground with a roof topped in grass.

Director of community wellbeing and social care, Ian Anderson, said: “It will be a real landmark moment to see the first 12 new homes occupied. Of these, ten will be for affordable housing tenants and two for private sale. The next 19 homes after that will be ready for occupation by the end of July.”

Moving to Pan Meadows

Please use the contacts below if you are interested in moving to Pan Meadows:

- Private purchasers – visit www.barratthomes.co.uk or the on site Barratt Homes Sales Centre at Pan Meadows.
- Shared ownership – call Spectrum’s home ownership team on 0800 3163316.
- Affordable housing tenants – visit www.islandhomefinder.org.uk

Above: Pan community warden Kim Roscoe brings a smile to the Isobel Centre café Below: Isobel Park provides a place for recreation and play for the whole community

All new residents will be able to benefit from the extensive planning and preparatory work that has gone in to creating an attractive enhanced community.

A ten hectare country park forming part of the development will soon be opening, together with many other features to enhance surroundings for the expanded community. Seven thousand trees have already been planted in the country park.

A concerted effort has also been made to use local businesses and local people for the project. So far 30 Island suppliers have been used and 118 Island residents are actively employed on the site – and Barratt Homes has provided the opportunity for 12 young people from the Island to take apprenticeships or national vocational qualifications in a range of skills.

Commissioning manager for the council, Peter Hopkins, said: “The Pan Management Company has been formed to manage the Pan Meadows site – with a commitment to ensure the development is integrated fully into the existing community, to manage and maintain the environment, and ensure it is a safe and clean place to live.”

Vital to the Pan Meadows project has been the work of the Pan Neighbourhood Project over recent years.

Among the features to create a community attractive and engaging for new and existing residents is Isobel Park – a recreational and play area for the community, with robust and extensive play equipment for children. The park also features a floodlit, all weather multi-use games area – opened in 2008, and hugely popular with local residents.

And at the heart of the park is the Isobel Centre – a community centre run by the Pan Together community group and featuring a café, internet facilities and meeting/function areas.

New-look schools start to take shape

Pictured: Work is underway on a two-classroom extension for Nettlestone Primary School

Many school buildings and sites across the Island are set to be transformed over the coming months as new-build, extension and refurbishment work for the Island's new two-tier system gets fully underway.

The work forms part of the most intensive and forward-looking construction project ever undertaken in the education sector on the Island.

The council is working closely with its framework partner, Willmott Dixon Construction, on the project, which will create school sites fit to serve the Island's new primary and secondary school system. Funding for the project is being provided centrally by the Department for Education. The latest major developments include:

- planning approval for £6 million new build projects for Haylands Primary at Ryde (on the Swanmore playing field site) and St Francis Primary at Ventnor (on the Ventnor Middle site), with work due to start in July;
- work underway for a two classroom extension at Nettlestone Primary, due for completion by September for the start of the new school year;
- work due to start, subject to planning consent, to convert the gymnasium at Nodehill Middle into two new science laboratories for the new joint sixth form earmarked for the site, serving Carisbrooke and Medina secondary schools;
- refurbishment at middle school sites which are to close and become primary schools, including Solent Middle (Gurnard Primary), Somerton Middle (Love Lane Primary), Osborne Middle (Queensgate Primary), Mayfield Middle (Greenmount Primary), Forelands Middle (Bembridge

- Primary), Kitbridge Middle (Hunnyhill Primary), and Lake Middle (Broadlea Primary) – all due to be completed by Easter 2012;
- the installation of mobile classrooms at a range of primary sites, to cater for expanding school numbers – including Arreton, Carisbrooke and Northwood – in time for the September 2011 year.

Project director for the council, Janet Newton, said: "This is a wide-ranging, complex and exciting project that will create school sites suitable to serve our schoolchildren for generations to come.

"At the same time we have endeavoured to create contractor packages serving the project that promote the importance of Island investment and Island construction industry jobs.

"The overall schools' capital programme has a target of 25 per cent of the work being carried out by Island-based businesses, and our intention is to increase this. In fact, the first two batches of works packages include 100 per cent Island-based contractors."

To help and encourage smaller Island building firms to become involved in the range of projects, a second 'bidders' day' featuring workshops on the complexities of completing tenders, is due to be staged.

Reaching for the sky

The new £30 million state of the art secondary school for Cowes has been visibly rising from the ground in recent months.

Groundworks for the Cowes One School Pathfinder project (on the existing Cowes High site) have been completed, the steel framework erected, and cladding work begun.

The council's partner for the project, Pihl (UK) Ltd, has been pushing ahead with the project, with the new school building due to open for the 2012 academic year.

The new school is set to provide a modern learning environment with extensive facilities, as well as an asset for the whole local community.

School Report online!

An extended version of School Report is being created on the council's iwight.com website – supporting the regular slot in One Island. Keep an eye on the website for developments.

Major highways' project forges ahead

Here we put the Island's £260 million highways' private investment initiative (PFI) under the spotlight – and set out the facts behind this important scheme...

The preparations for the Island's highways PFI project – a scheme that will see unprecedented investment to bring our road network up to standard – are continuing to schedule.

Three companies (or consortiums) have successfully submitted proposals for how they would undertake the work in the PFI – which will be the largest engineering project ever undertaken on the Island.

The submitted plans will now be studied by the council's PFI team – and following an appraisal process, one of the three bidders could be deselected.

The complex selection procedure, set down by government, will culminate in the announcement of a preferred partner at the end of the 2012 – with work due to start early the following year.

As well as upgrading the Island's road and pavement network, the PFI will include all street cleansing, street lighting and street furniture (including road signs), CCTV systems and also roadside verge maintenance.

the services currently provided by the council, that will in future be included in the contract. This money is broadly what is already spent on the services. However, because this contribution will support a brand new single contract, the council will get better value for money from this spend. The current value of this contribution is around £8.3 million (though the council is seeking to reduce the amount as part of the negotiations with potential partners), and it will be linked to inflation.

- The contract period is for 25 years. Because it covers such a long period, the council is making sure the deal represents best value for money and also brings the maximum benefit to the local economy.
- Throughout the contract, the selected

PFI partner will have to prove they are offering best value for money. There will be scope within the contract to alter the terms to reflect unexpected changes in the market or economy.

- The PFI project is the only way the council could ever attract the vast amount of money required to carry out such a comprehensive improvement of the highways' network.
- While the amount of money initially earmarked for the Island was reduced by the government from £360 million, the amount available will still enable every stretch of public highway currently in use to be upgraded and maintained for 25 years. Each stretch of highway will be treated at least once during the 25 years of the scheme, and the busier the road, the higher the specification of the work.

Driving the Island's recovery

Along with other local authorities up and down the country, the Isle of Wight Council has been experiencing first hand the reality of running services for residents on a far tighter budget.

But, within its range of duties, the council has remained determined to take positive steps to continue to support and promote the local economy. These range from the £260 million highways' private finance initiative (PFI), to ensuring the Island is well positioned to benefit from the next generation of superfast broadband.

Council strategic director for the economy and environment, Stuart Love, said: "We are involved in a wide range of projects as part of our responsibility to the Island's economy, particularly focusing on the vision of encouraging economic growth while promoting the green agenda.

"We have a supportive and guiding role behind many of these projects, working with major companies on large scale initiatives, and also enhancing links on behalf of local industry and commerce."

Highways' PFI

The council has been working to ensure the Island has a skilled workforce ready to respond to the requirements of the major highways' PFI project (see feature on opposite page). The winning bidder will be expected to have a low carbon footprint – which will put local companies, services and labour in prime position to get involved.

Vestas research and development

The council has been involved in the planning processes for the building of the new Vestas research and development facility in Stag Lane, Newport, working closely with the company on various aspects of the project. The facility is due to officially open later this year, providing jobs for 260 people.

Solar energy project

Help has been given to Kronos Solar with its development of a five megawatt solar park near Porchfield, due to be officially opened in July. The site, on low quality agricultural land, will feed directly into the National Grid, and provide enough power for 4,500 people.

Offshore wind park

The council has been working with Eneco, the firm appointed by the Crown Estate to develop a major offshore wind farm eight miles off the west coast of the Island. It is planned the wind farm will eventually generate enough power for 615,000 to 820,000 homes.

Broadband UK

An expression of interest has been submitted by the council to Broadband UK, as a first stage towards opening up the Island to the next generation of superfast broadband.

Strengthening local business links

A successful business breakfast was staged at Cowes Yacht Haven in May, attended by 65 representatives of Island business – with a view to forging stronger links with the Solent Local Enterprise Partnership. The council has been actively involved with the creation of the partnership, along with colleagues in the Southampton and Portsmouth areas. The event was organised by the council and promoted by the Isle of Wight Chamber of Commerce and Industry and the Federation of Small Businesses.

The Isle of Wight Council has been playing a key role in promoting the local economy as it emerges from testing times. Here we look at some of the major projects it has been supporting – particularly in the renewable energy sector

More than 70 health and social care professionals working on the Island attended the Island's 2011 Annual Sexual Health Conference. They were joined by Dr Radha Modgil from Channel 4's The Sex Education Show who spoke about the show and the importance of sex education.

Island GP and sexual health specialist, Dr Patrick Wills, said: "This annual event is an important opportunity for everyone involved in providing sexual health services on the Island to improve their understanding of current issues and share good practice."

New ambulances take to Island roads

Four new emergency ambulances have been handed over to the Island's top-performing ambulance service. Emergency ambulances travel about 40,000 miles a year and are kept in service on the Island for about five years. The new ambulances, which cost £158,000 each, are Mercedes-Benz Sprinter 519CDI vehicles with an ambulance conversion.

Chris Smith, head of the ambulance service, said: "Staff throughout the service have been working very hard and are very committed and dedicated to patient care. It's important that we have high performance emergency ambulances to enable our staff to deliver the excellent response times Islanders have enjoyed in recent years. These four new ambulances are welcome additions to our fleet of vehicles."

Shipwreck and shenanigans!

An historic link with Bermuda, one of the Isle of Wight's fellow competing islands in this month's NatWest Island Games, has been recalled by the County Record Office at Newport.

In April 1862 a boat, the Cedrine, sailing from Bermuda to Portsmouth was wrecked on Brighstone Ledge – the captain having mistaken the Island for low cloud.

All 234 people on board, including 191 ex-convicts returning from a short sentence of transportation to Bermuda, were rescued – with locals including vicar, the Rev Pellew Gaze, commended for gallantry.

Unfortunately, the records show that many of the former convicts celebrated their rescue with rather too much enthusiasm in the two public houses in Brighstone village. As a result there were skirmishes in the village street – and troops stationed at Parkhurst were sent across the Island to restore order.

Bermuda was famous for its cedar timber. The Cedrine was a new boat made from the wood, and some of its timbers were used in restoration work carried out at Mottistone Church at the time.

NATURE NOTES

Seen from the Island's high points, like St Catherine's Down or the Wroxall Horseshoe, the colours of the Island's countryside patchwork quilt are changing. Gone are the spring's fresh lime greens, set against the rich brown shades of the soil. By midsummer, the woodlands have taken on deeper green hues and crops are ripening to straw yellow, with occasional bright red splashes of poppies making a startling contrast.

The corners and broad headlands of arable fields benefit wildlife greatly. Wild flowers attract nectar-feeding insects, including bumble bees and hoverflies. Their eggs develop into larvae which feed on aphids and other crop pests. Birds like grey partridges, linnets and yellowhammers benefit from the rich variety of insects to feed their chicks. Voles and other small mammals thrive, and in turn their presence makes the headlands ideal hunting habitat for barn owls and kestrels.

Many rare plants are now confined to the edges of arable fields, their seed lying dormant for many years before ploughing brings it nearer the surface where it can germinate. Corn marigolds (pictured above) and cornflowers are easily seen but a closer look is needed to find weasel snout, corn chamomile, and sharp-leaved fluellen. A rare Island speciality, field cow-wheat, has flamboyant purple and yellow flowers. In former times this plant was called 'poverty weed' and people were employed to pull it up from cereal fields because its seed contaminated flour and made it taste bitter. Nowadays, it is confined to a few sites on the Undercliff, well way from food crops.

Seasonal guide to wildlife in your garden

It's the time of year to enjoy sitting out in the garden to view the wildlife it attracts. Butterflies and moths are on the wing and are attracted to nectar-rich plants such as marjoram, lavender (pictured) and buddleia. The Big Butterfly Count is coming up from 16 to 31 July – see www.bigbutterflycount.org for details of how to join in.

Birds, meanwhile, are busy feeding their rapidly growing young on aphids, caterpillars and other insect pest larvae collected from garden plants, so it's best to avoid spraying them at the moment. The adult birds will appreciate a supply of fresh water in hot weather.

Where the little things make a difference...

The Mottistone private patient unit has a ten-bedded inpatient area with single, en suite rooms and an outpatient area with 3 consulting rooms and a minor treatment room.

The Mottistone offers a range of clinical specialties with 34 consultants providing excellent personalised clinical care to patients on an individual basis, supported by a team of skilled nursing and administrative staff.

The Mottistone benefits from being on the same site as St Mary's Hospital as this gives access to all the facilities of a large hospital, including 6 operating theatres, an Intensive Care Unit, Pathology and Radiology.

Recent clinical audits show that there have been no cases of healthcare associated infection in the Mottistone in the past year.

In addition to excellent clinical care The Mottistone provides the following:-

- An extensive menu with meals prepared by the Mottistone chef
- Daily newspapers
- Television and radio in all rooms
- Unlimited visiting

The Mottistone provides medical care for patients who have private health insurance and also for patients who wish to pay for their health care. The Mottistone can offer fixed price, all inclusive packages for many types of operation.
